

Hello Parents,

Kudos to everyone for a comparatively smooth transition to navigating distance learning while balancing the additional stresses that we are currently facing. Hopefully, you've been able to enjoy more family time along the way.

Please contact your schools if you need any additional supports with food services, supplies, technology, or communication with teachers next week. The following week will still be our Spring Break; we will update you on what happens next later that week.

Here is a useful resource for parents from the Why Try Organization: <https://resilienceguide.org/>.

Also, the weather is supposed to be good for the next couple of days, so this is a great opportunity to get outside for a while after being homebound all week.

Thanks for your continued support!

Doug Jacobs
